Hampton High School

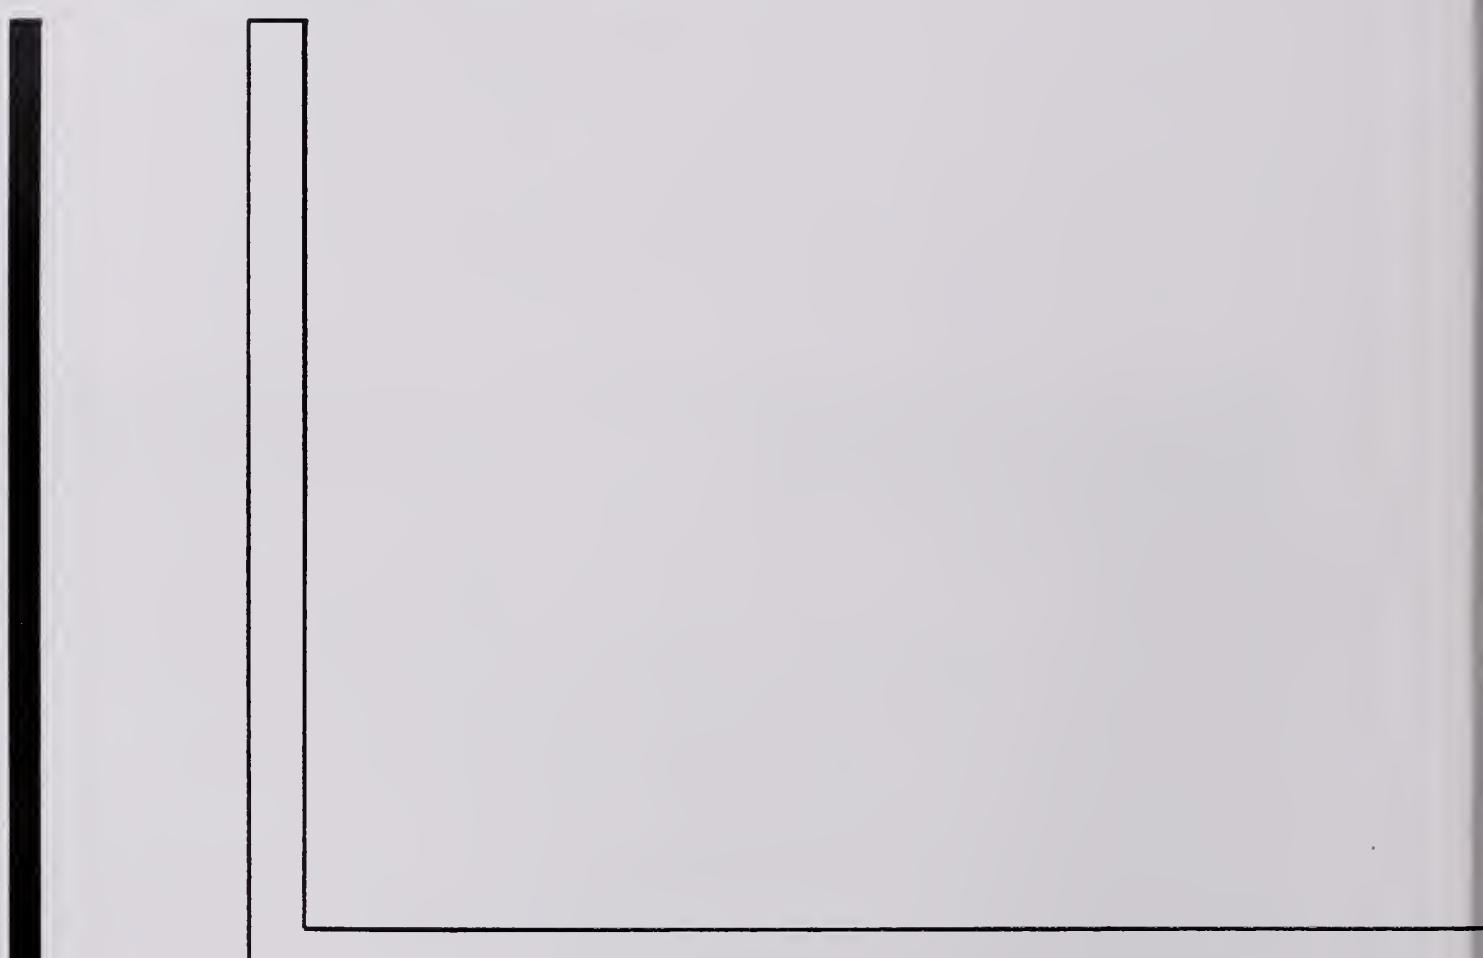

Hampton, Virginia

The Theme

The picture we fill, the world we complete . . . this is the KRABBA's theme. Through the book, pictures like these will show you the picture we filled at Hampton High and how we learned to fill the larger picture of our world.

Faculty and Administration

In preparing us to be adults, our faculty has both instructed us and helped us choose our careers. Their work demands patience, and they sometimes meet more disappointments than triumphs in teaching us how to letter a mechanical drawing, or how to decline a German noun . . . These pages will show you the people — over 100 of them — who gave their time this year to teach us to fill our world's picture.

C. ALTON LINDSAY
Superintendent of Schools

Mr. Lindsay and his assistants govern the affairs of the entire Hampton public school system. Mr. Lindsay's influence on Hompton High School reaches us through his cooperation with Mr. Lively, our principal, and the executive officers of the P.T.A. The efforts of these people have produced a high school which graduates students skilled in trades, arts, and sciences, and which is not choked with too many regulations or strict patterns of operation.

City School Administration

C. W. MILLER
Assistant Superintendent of Schools

Cooperation between city and school officials produced the parents' "Back to School Night." Here, Suzanne Turnbull and Richard Watkins direct a parent to her homeroom.

If you wish to discuss something with the principal, you can go straight into Mr. Lively's office; if he is on the phone or busy with someone else, you need wait only a few minutes. No receptionist, no appointments — if he is not busy, he will see you.

Mr. Lively has worked in this way as principal of Hompton High School for five years.

Aside from his administrative work, he sponsors the Key Club, is present at most of our dances, goes to almost all of our games, and works to help us into college or into a job. Nobody pays him for these extra hours of work; he does it to support a school in which he deeply believes.

School Administration

STANLEY BECOUVARAKIS

Assistant Principal

B.A., Otterbein College;

M.A., College of William and Mary

Working with Mr. Lively and Mr. Szetelo on other school problems, Mr. Becouvarakis also keeps track of Hompton High's money.

At the beginning of the year, he checks out all the Federal Survey forms, then he turns to the task of keeping straight the finances of the school's student publications — so far Mr. "Bee" has kept the yearbook and newspaper business affairs from bankrupting the city of Hompton.

Mr. "Bee" was formerly in the physical education department, and, if he can find the time, he would like to start coach work on one of the Cropper teams.

Mr. Szetelo works not only as assistant principal, but as Russian teacher in Hompton High.

His class in Russian, which uses a first year college text, has consistently produced students accepted by their colleges to step into second year work.

As assistant principal Mr. Szetelo helps coordinate the school's work, plans the Croppers' ticket-salves program, and, as dean of boys, deals in the tough job of seeing to it that Hompton High's boys become convinced that the only way to true happiness is obeying school rules.

EDWARD R. SZETELA

Social Studies

Mrs. Dixon and Mrs. Moore discuss problem in preparing student's college application.

Classes

We are in such a hurry to grow up and enter adult life that we seldom pause to acknowledge the youth we will soon lose. In a few years, when our rush to outgrow childhood has ended, you will use this section to see yourself and your classmates as youths, still learning to take a place in the picture of our world.

Miss Elsie Goy Lane, Sponsor

Miss Lane not only serves as Senior Class sponsor, but works as head of the Social Studies Department and teaches United States history.

Calling cards, caps and gowns, Prom night, Class Day . . . all the big annual events that involve seniors come under the supervision of Miss Lane. Working through the class officers, she sees that each event is planned well then coordinates them all into a calendar of events that will give her seniors the "big" senior year that students remember even after their college days.

"Back to School" Night for parents! Miss Lane and the senior officers worked with the PTA and other two classes to plan the event and provide guides for Parents.

Senior Class Officers: Mary Dutrow, treasurer; Chippy Martin, president; Sammy Williams, vice president; Amy Price, secretary.

As the year draws closer and closer to a close, the senior officers take on more and more responsibility and work in seeing that the big senior events are successes. Throughout the year Chippy governed the senior body, directing committee work and coordinating plans with the SCA, but in June his work grew with the planning of Class Day and, finally, the preparation of his graduation speech.

Sommy shouldered responsibility for the caps and gowns: he saw to it that they were ordered, that they fit, and that they were returned to the company. Mory collected senior dues and the proceeds from the Senior Play, also helping in processing cap and gown funds. And Amy? All year she kept minutes, handled correspondence, and checked the spelling on 690 calling cards!

"Golly, you mean senior election results are in?
... Chippy won! ... and Amy, too? ... hurrah!
... yes, have another drink!"

MRS. RUTH B. WALLIO

Sponsor

Mrs. Wallio directs a class of 781 students, to whom the school life in Hampton High is no longer new, but who have not yet reached the status of the seniors. Through this middle year she takes the old sophomore class and builds it into an individual group with its own spirit — ready to enter the senior year.

Junior Class Officers: Babby King, treasurer; Lane Kelly, president; Tammy Joyner, vice president; Jamie Hubbard, secretary.

Carol Jennings, Janyce Austin, and Wendy French arrived at school to learn the results of the Junior Class elections . . . "So Lane won! . . ."

Record Number of Sophomores for 1962

Sponsor: Miss Kathryn Bully

This year Hampton High School has the largest sophomore class in its history. These 906 new students, occupying 26 classrooms, entered this maze of halls and classrooms in September; by now they have become accustomed to the quick pace of student life at H.H.S. and have contributed much to the school.

We the seniors hope that when these sophomores graduate, they too, will have received as much knowledge and have benefited as much as we have from our outstanding faculty and our excellent facilities for learning.

Staid seniors welcome sophomores to school.

Curriculum

Hampton High School sends graduates to V.M.I. and Duke, to Rice and Randolph Macon — schools with particular specialities in education. To prepare students for different types of colleges our school has a range of courses capable of readying students for many fields, from pre-med to business. Here you will see the courses you chose from to prepare yourself to enter the picture of our world.

Students Master Office

Girls get a chance to convert their shorthand notes into actual letters; a combination of skills is required — the girls must be able to type, to operate business machines and to take shorthand.

Students at Hampton High are offered a wide range of business courses, to prepare them either for college business studies or for office work. A one year course in general business is open to sophomores; juniors and seniors may enter a two year typing program; and juniors can begin a two year study of shorthand.

The process of learning bookkeeping is tedious, but there is a large demand for people skilled in the practice.

Distributive education, though not contained in the business department, is associated with the business studies. Here students in the distributive education room try their retailing knowledge. (What would Miss Rawe and Miss Curlee want with stuffed dogs and pondo bears?)

and Retailing Skills

Businessmen in Hampton offer fully paid part-time jobs to girls in vocational office training. These girls leave school early in some cases to get on-the-job training.

Bookkeeping is a one year course open to juniors and seniors. The one year courses of office practice and vocational office training are open only to seniors, and in these courses students come to know real office procedure.

Glennell Sinclair and Jay Thrawner master office practice.

Girls in typing class face the task of keeping their errors to less than five a page.

The seniors' vocational office training program actually sends students out on the job in Hampton and Newport News to apply what they learned. This is Hampton High's final step in producing a finished product, ready for the business world.

English is a required course for all students. Hampton High has consecutive sophomore, junior, and senior English courses, separated into college prep and non-college prep classes. Literature, grammar, and usage are included in all courses, though senior college prep English deals almost completely in with literature.

The fundamentals are taught and drilled in before literature or composition work begins. At left, Pat Suis demonstrates the diagramming of an infinitive phrase.

English Classes Stress Speech,

The library staff orders selected books to be put on sale in the library. These paper-back books provide an important aid to literature studies. Here James Mercer buys a book while Sherry Dean is still making her selection.

Speech, drama, and journalism are part of the English curriculum, each course covering a year's work. These courses are open to all students, and top students graduate from these classes to work an hour a day in the yearbook or newspaper period.

Don Taylor looks over a research paper just before handing it in. Composition work is part of each English course so that students will master the art of expressing themselves on paper.

Sophomores in Mrs. Honsen's seventh period class enact scene from Shakespeare's Julius Caesar. Apparently, Julius is having a hard time dying.

Reading, and Writing Ability

Here, seniors enact fight scene from Beowulf. Pat Watts and Karl Wikstram fight off monster. (Monster played by Fronk Woolridge.) English literature is the main study of senior students.

Literature is taught to all students; sophomores deal with Shakespeare, juniors study American literature, and seniors work in English literature. This work is in combined analytical lecture sessions and outside reading.

Emily, a ghost, tries to get some attention in her journey to the living world in a scene from Our Town. Though this girl actress will undoubtedly get some attention, Emily actually did not.

Al Matts and Robert Anderson discuss a drafting problem. It is tedious and difficult to master drafting, but throughout industry the skill is necessary. The ability to understand mechanical drawings and do them oneself also pays dividends in other areas of occupation, such as in real estate work, where blueprints are part of daily business.

Industrial Arts Produce

Hampton High has three complete shops and two drafting rooms. In these rooms students can study electrical shop-work, woodworking, metal-working, and mechanical drawing.

The shop courses come in two year programs, terminating in the senior year. Three years of drafting are offered, and graduates from the three year course are able to step right into industrial jobs.

In electrical shop, boys study circuitry, design, and electrical relationships through mathematics. At left, Danny Ferguson works on the circuit board to complete a wiring system.

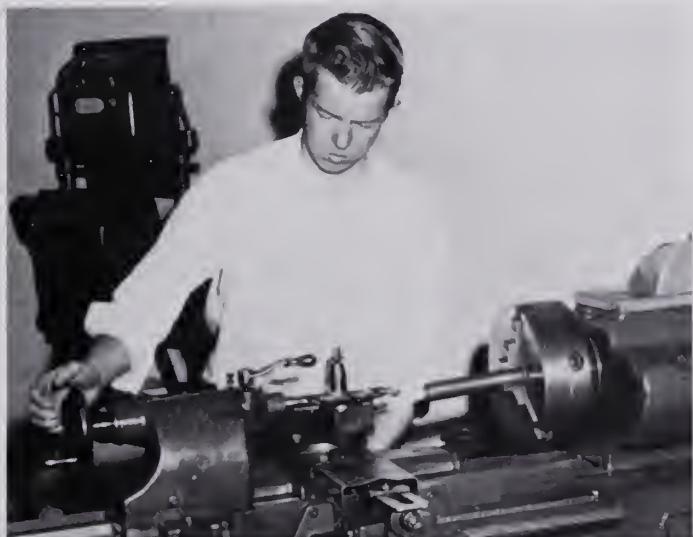

The tools of a draftsman . . . With these, students learn to render a scientist's or engineer's dream into a plan usable by builders.

The shaper is one of the several large machines in the metal shop that set Hampton High's shops apart from other schools'. The machinery allows students to gain skills that let them step right into a job after high school.

Future Shipbuilders

Boys enrolled in Hampton High's industrial arts program easily get jobs in the shipyards or at N.A.S.A. during the summer. The Hampton shop equipment and faculty turns out graduates each year that contribute to the launching of huge ships or of missiles bound for outer space.

Patience is needed to master work with this drill.

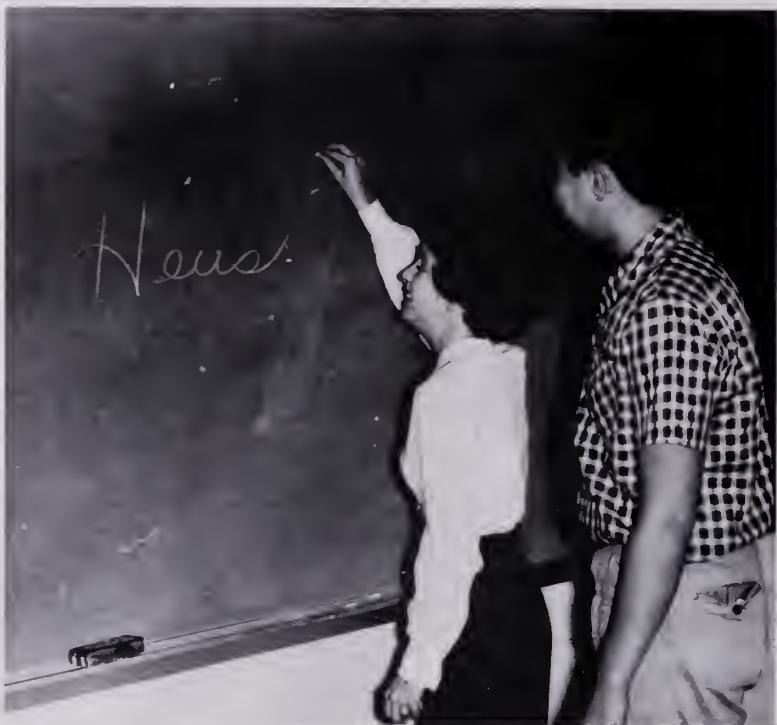

In electrical shop boys may pick their own special projects, on approval by the teacher. Here Donny Fromol studies a radio's components before altering it to suit his needs.

Language Department Teaches

Hampton High students can engage in two years of German, three of Latin, three of Spanish, one of Russian, and four of French. Beginning French, German, Latin, and Spanish are open to all students, with later courses and the year of college Russian reserved for pupils whose records promise success.

Becky Koonce and Doug Burd spell out "hello" in Latin.

Mrs. Yotes makes sure her students know "hello" in French!

"Good day" equals "hello" in German.

Students of all the languages read literature in other tongues — such as foreign editions of Readers' Digest or Life — in order to supplement lab work and classroom drill.

Five Languages to Crabbers

Through composition work, outside reading, and practice in the language labs, pupils can reach fluency in both the written and spoken aspects of a foreign tongue.

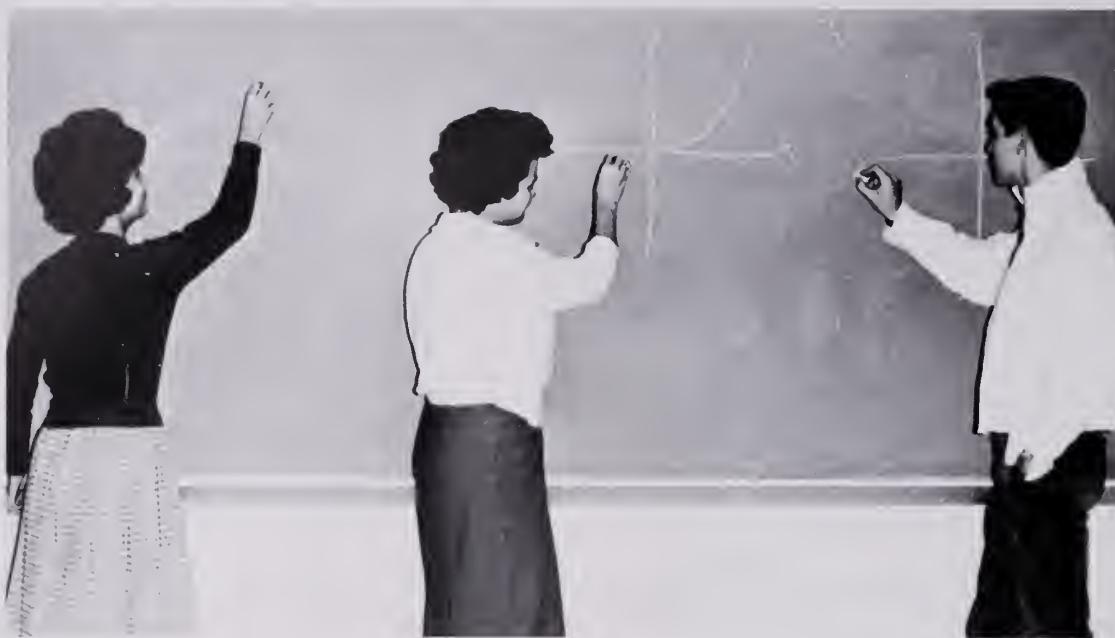

Students in French class at work in the French language lab. These language laboratories have desks equipped with microphones and earphones so that students can practice their language either by way of tape recordings or directly with the teacher, who leads the class from a master console.

"Hello" in Spanish — fully equipped with the front and rear (and upside down) punctuation marks characteristic of Spanish.

The Russians have their own alphabet, and students must master it before they start actually learning the tongue. At right, Arlie Williams writes out the twelve letters of the Russian "hello."

Ann Johnson, Millie Dickens, and Jimmy Forrest study graphs of interest growth rate in general math.

Math Courses Prepare Students

Hampton High's mathematics program takes students through first and second year algebra, plane geometry, trigonometry, solid geometry, and fundamental calculus and analytic geometry, with basic mathematics offered to students planning to enter the business world.

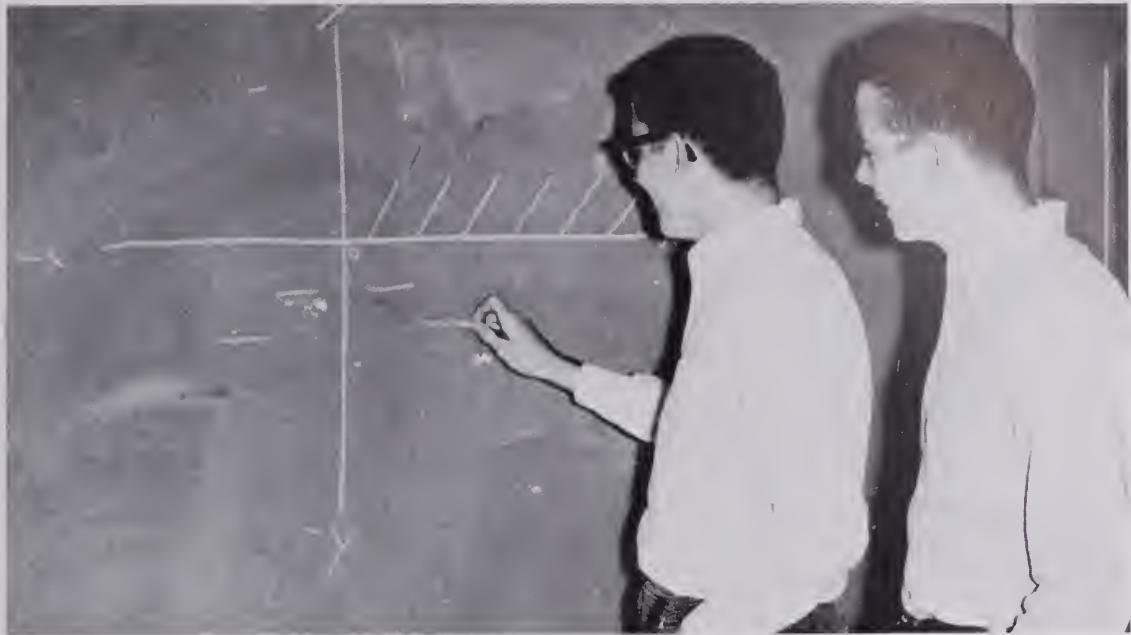

Ira Saunders graphs a hyperbola in his first year algebra class.

Paula Tannen, in plane geometry, graphs the parabolic growth rate of the area of a square as its sides increase in length.

In each of its concepts, most of mathematics can be expressed graphically. On these pages, students show graphed relationships found in their math courses.

Gene Paythress and William Hayes plot a discontinuous function in second year algebra.

for College Math and Science

Two years of algebra are prerequisite for all students, and students can choose to take both courses consecutively or place the required year of plane geometry between them. Solid geometry and trigonometry are one semester courses open to seniors and qualified juniors. Analytic geometry and calculus are introduced in the general advanced math course.

Mrs. Kersey helps Jack Bouserman in work on progressions.

In advanced math students are introduced to analytic geometry, calculus, the theory of equations, matrix algebra, and set theory. Here Frank Deis graphs a lemniscate on polar coordinates.

Science Classes Develop

Miss Bully instructs advanced biology students on the human body. Physiology is an important part of the course, and it contributes to doctor and nurse training.

Basic biology, chemistry, physics, and advanced biology are available to Hompton High students as part of the college prep program. Nursing is offered to qualified students planning a nursing or medical career. Two years of science are required for graduation, and students may choose among these courses to meet the requirement. Basic biology is open to sophomores, and advanced biology, which explores carefully the complex forms of life, is open to students who have qualified through their first year work.

Miss Reeves shows how to give an injection.

Steve Cook dissects a deer head in advanced biology.

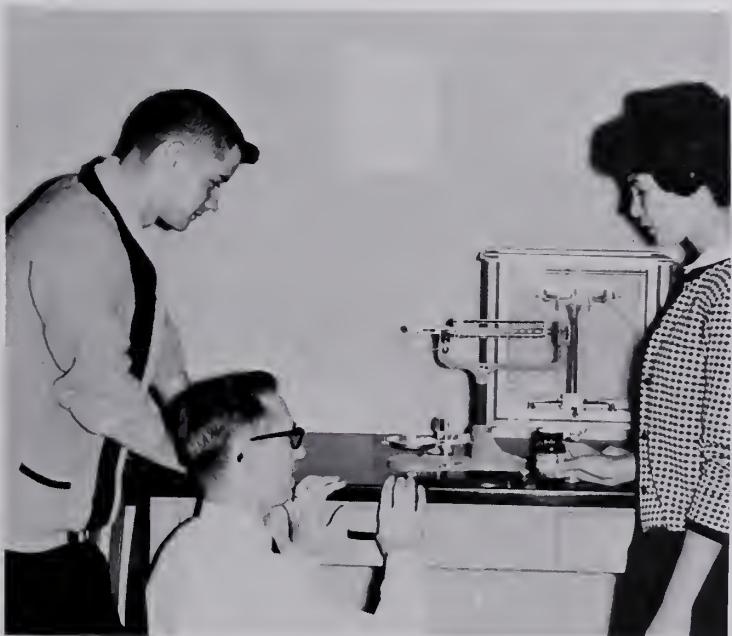

New Engineers and Doctors

Jack Spencer and Jeff Greene can't believe Mr. Leach beat them with the demonstration slide rule! Pupils in physics soon learn that they must depend on their slide rules or they will not finish their tests or get their homework done.

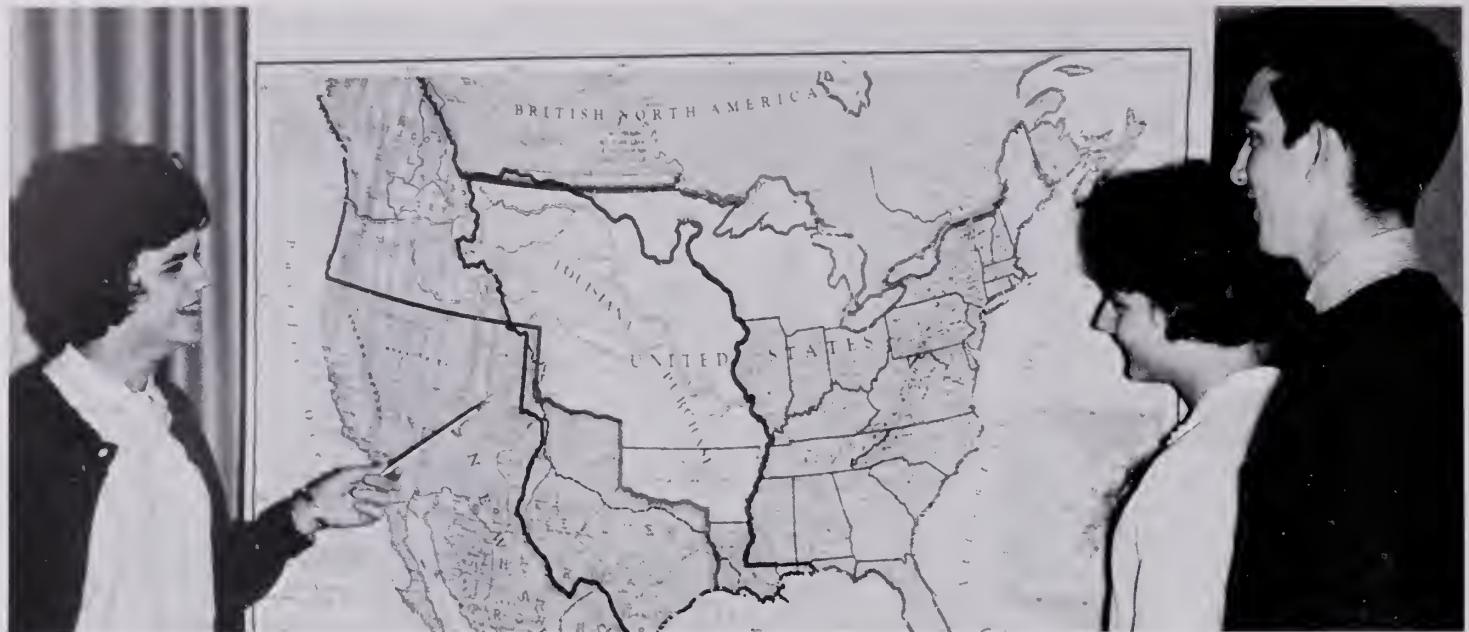

The physics and chemistry courses are general and broad in their presentation, linking mathematics and theory — usually with more emphasis on the mathematical relationships. The school has a separate physics classroom and storeroom, and the building also boasts of two chemistry labs, each fully equipped with hood and chemical storeroom.

Chemistry students use hood to carry out experiments that produce noxious gases.

Mr. Rose helps Billy Vann and Condy Carmel weigh calcium chlorate for experiment in releasing chlorine.

Students became familiar with U.S. History and geography before studying U.S. Government.

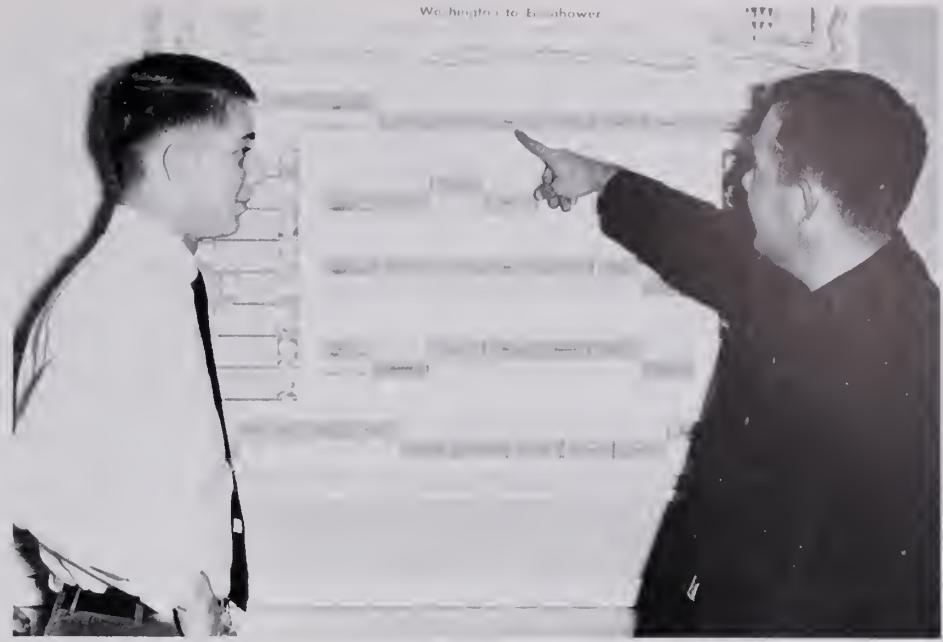

Social Studies Establish

Hampton High students are offered four social studies courses. American History and U.S. Government are required, with geography and world history held as electives available to all students. The course in American History surveys the complete American History while at the same time keeping an eye on current American events, and U. S. Government also includes this current events study with its civics program. Both world history and geography are broad and general in scope; world history covering all of recorded history and geography dealing in the physical, social and economic aspects of the subject.

Miss Green lectures students on geographical aspects of world history. The map she uses is large size, and covers a third of the room's rear wall.

Mr. Duckworth lectures Robbie Koyton in U.S. Government. The course develops a firm background in civics, then probes the American role in world affairs and current events.

Liberal Arts Background

The globe symbolizes the scope of the geography course. The course strives first to provide a working knowledge of the location of countries and cities, then looks into specific aspects of geography.

It is often the responsibility of language teachers to instruct their students on the geography of the countries which use the language taught. Here Mr. Szentel teaches Russian geography.

Art instruction covers textile work, ceramic work, and painting. The whole range of study is presented by Eileen Cummings, Linda Jackson, Roger Johnson, and Poul Bell.

Arts Temper Science and Math Studies

The arts department directs music, art, and home economics studies. Three years of art are offered to all students as electives: beginning art, intermediate art, and ceramic art. Vocal music is also an elective open to all students, and the classes are divided, by periods, into different choruses. The art of playing musical instruments is taught, classes consisting of students receiving separate instruction, or of entire bands. Home economics is an elective course open to all girls, and each class deals in almost all phases of homemaking, in a 3 year program.

Mr. Lawrence instructs Doris Brown, Lenny Messick, and Jeonette Ferguson.

Band and chorus classes in the same period work together to provide music for assemblies. Here, Mr. Swiggett leads both the band and chorus in practice for Christmas program.

Home economics covers a broad range of studies. On the left, girls in Miss Reardon's first period class check the oven . . . and wash the dishes.

Girls learn almost all the sports that boys do. Here, girls in class leave the building to play field hockey.

Gym Brings Rest from Classroom

Physical education is a requirement for sophomores and juniors, and is an elective for seniors. Students learn the rules and skills involved in tennis, tumbling, volleyball, softball, field hockey, basketball, and touch football.

With a girls' gym, a boys' gym, and playing fields, these sports are nearly year-around activities. As part of this sports program, health classes, driver education, varsity sports, and varsity cheerleading are handled by the physical education department.

Varsity cheerleading is governed by the physical education department.

Boys master several sports in H.H.S.

During the winter, girls practice tumbling

MON	TUE	WED	THURS	FRI

Features

Here is the story of our school year outside of the classroom: the clubs, the dances, the holiday preparations . . . All of this was fun, but it was at the same time a prelude to our hobbies and jobs after we leave school to step into our place in the picture of the world.

MEETINGS

This . . . is Hampton High.

Hampton High School Teaches, Counsels,

Doesn't everybody admire the Boss?

Yes, this is Hampton High School . . . a splendid physical structure and an inspiring Almo Moter. Although it might give the impression that one could be lost in the crowd, Hampton High School actually emphasizes the individual. This interest in the individual is shown by the various activities, clubs, and societies pictured in the following section. Both in quality and quantity, these numerous programs provide the widest possible range of extra-curricular endeavor.

Hampton's Crabbers watch gleefully as Linda Eanes, one of the Warwick Farmers, tries desperately to re-join her forces.

Influences, and Develops 2,300 Students

We might lose the game but we'll never lose the spirit.

Extra-curricular activities are an integral part of school life; however, no school is really complete without that intangible quality, school spirit. At Hampton, this spirit is manifested in pep rallies, assemblies, and in enthusiastic response to the school's athletic contests. The pictures you see on this page are but a small segment of the colorful and meaningful pageant of a school year.

SCA Offers Students Vital Information

In 1955, with the organization of the Student Cooperative Association, the student body of Hompton High School acquired greater unity and more school spirit. Membership in the SCA, as the Association is usually called, is the right of every student.

Student-school policies, projects, and activities are determined by the SCA Council, which is composed of elected representatives from each homeroom, each school-sponsored club or organization, and the SCA officers. School elections, dances, assemblies, and special events come under the jurisdiction of these representatives.

on School Activities and Special Events

Directly responsible for the majority of student activities is the SCA Executive Board. The committees represented on this Board are HHS, Welfare, PTA and Guidance, Point System, Honor, Elections, Special Events, Assemblies, Scrapbook, Publicity, Dance, and Sportsmanship; they continually work for improvement in school life. This year, for example, the Welfare Committee, under the leadership of Shirley Fields, headed a canned-goods drive for the Patrick Henry Hospital Thanksgiving. The response of the student body to this drive served to re-emphasize the effective relationship between students and the Executive Board.

Members of the Welfare Committee: Nancy Harris, Amy Price, Gail Richardson, Brenda Ferree, Mory Riddle, Dixie Scarborough, Sylvia Wright, Nancy Hopkins, and Shirley Fields collect canned goods for the Patrick Henry drive.

SCA Federation: Diane Geer, Jamie Hubbard, Stanley Trimble, Jay Donlan, Lane Kelly, Jean Cladfelter, Louise Beard, Sonny Smith.

SCA Federation Fosters Exchange of Ideas

Hampton, Newport News, and Warwick High Schools form the Peninsula Student Cooperative Association Federation. Through Exchange Days, several students from each school meet at a designated school for the purpose of promoting fellowship, cooperation, and understanding among the three student bodies.

Each school has equal representation on the Federation Council and the officers are rotated among the three schools each year. This Federation and its hard-working members accomplish a great deal of notable work.

"You're in luck, bay," Skip Willis tells Mike Fuller, "I just happen to have a program handy."

Led by Mr. Lively and the Hampton Kiwanis Club, Hampton High School's Key Club makes service the first item on its agenda. This group of boys has contributed $1,100 for the gymnasium scoreboard, published the student directory, sold programs at home football games, provided gifts for the Weaver Orphanage Christmas parties, and received an award for work with the Multiple Sclerosis Society.

To become a member of the Key Club a boy must have an overall "C" average and must be approved by the older members. This year's officers are David Shuffebarger, president; William Martin, vice-president; Donald Matheson, secretary; and Albert Willis, treasurer.

Booster Club assembles before pep rally.

Spirits Gleam as Boosters Scream

School spirit is given an extra boost by the Booster Club. The club, under the sponsorship of Misses Thomas and Roper, offers membership to all those with genuine enthusiasm for supporting the school teams. It also provides transportation to as many "away" games as possible, and has taken the lead in introducing flesh cards at "home" games. The Booster Club has a membership of sixty enthusiastic school and team supporters.

Officers for 1961-62 are Essie Godley, president; Kay Getzell, vice-president; Becky Hubbard, secretary; John Robbins, treasurer; and Anne Dressler, SCA Representative.

Jane Boyd Crowned Football Queen

Queen Jane Boyd, escort David Dwyer, and Senator Victor P. Wilson participate in the half-time ceremonies.

Football homecoming was held November 3, during half-time of the Hampton-Granby game. Music for the occasion was presented by the Hampton High School Marching Band, which featured the twirling of majorette Jean Karpik.

Senator Victor P. Wilson made the presentation of the loving cup and crowned the Queen, who was escorted by David Dwyer.

Lee Wood, who was emcee for the ceremonies, also honored Senior Attendant Amy Price, escorted by Stanley Trimble; Junior Attendant Barbara Riggle, escorted by Albert Willis; and Sophomore Attendant Kathy Seaton, escorted by Richard Watkins.

Frank Deis, Ridge Pate and Claude Higgins confer and concur on college plans.

Hampton Salutes Merit Scholars

Among the most sought-after awards for high school seniors are those offered by the National Merit Scholarship Foundation. Hampton High's winners are Alexander Chis, Frank Deis, Charles Hannah, Claude Higgins, Bettie Humphries, Helen Ruth Pape, Ridge Pate, Robert Rader, Richard Shagrin, and John Wheeler. Last fall they progressed to the semi-finalist level in nationwide competition, and are therefore in the upper one per cent of the nation's seniors. Each Semi-Finalist took the College Board Scholastic Aptitude Test last December and from the results the Foundation chose its Finalists.

Richard Shagrin, Helen Ruth Pape, Alexander Chis, and Robert Rader proudly acknowledge honors received from National Merit Scholarship Foundation.

Science Honor Society Promotes Research

A high academic rating and the winning of a science award are the requisites for membership in the Science Honor Society. Members spend their meeting time in discussions of individual and group research projects.

The sponsors, Miss Kathryn Bully, Miss Jacqueline Lackey, and Mr. Garland Lively are always ready to help the students in developing and completing their current scientific work.

Frank Deis and Robert Rader weigh magnesium and measure hydrochloric acid for an experiment.

Government in Action Helps Future Leaders

Chosen for outstanding leadership, scholarship, and community service, twenty-one juniors represented Hompton High School as delegates to Boys' State and Girls' State. The American Legion sponsors this program annually to give future citizens a working knowledge of governmental procedures.

From July ninth to July fifteenth, the girls met at Rodford College and the boys met at Virginia Polytechnic Institute. The adoption of city charters, election of city and state officials, and attendance at various informative lectures helped the delegates learn the fundamentals of government. An address by J. Lindsay Almond, Governor of Virginia, and an Inaugural Ball highlighted the week's activities.

Demonstrating voting procedures learned at Boys' and Girls' State are Michael Canway, William Martin, Mary Dutraw, Stanley Trimble, David Shufflebarger, Sally MacSmith, Albert Willis, and Hope Southall.

Russian Club Spans "Intercultural Gap"

One of the newest and most selective clubs at Hampton High School is the Russian Club. To be a member a person must be concurrently enrolled in the Russian class or must have taken Russian at another time. John Wheeler, president, William Martin, vice-president, and Stanley Latham, secretary, organize monthly meetings at which time fluency in the Russian language is promoted. A spring banquet climaxes the year's activities.

Russian Club sponsor Mr. Szetela acquaints students Richard Watkins, John Wheeler, and David Shamburger with the geography of the Soviet Union.

Biology Club Furthers the Life Sciences

Created to encourage interest in biology and to help more students enter the life sciences, the Biology Club, sponsored by Miss Jacqueline Lackey, offers observation trips for its members and conducts experiments and demonstrations.

An annual group activity is the entry of a cooperative research project in the Tidewater Science Fair; last year the club proudly brought home a third place State award. Leading the Biology Club's twenty members are John Rallins, president; Judy Blaadgaad, vice-president; Essie Gadley, secretary; Carol Miller, treasurer; and Margaret Clark, SCA representative.

Diane Dovis, Diana Beaver, Dempsey Burgess, and Kathy Coum look on as Margaret Clark points out the Biology Club bulletin board.

Chem-Phy Club Stresses Scientific Study

Formed to stimulate interest in the physical sciences, the Chem-Phy Club meets on Thursday afternoons after school under the guidance of Mr. Rose and Miss Magette. The members have helped to promote the science program in other schools by demonstrations and lectures, and in the past have prepared science booklets for use by grade school teachers.

In addition to its regular programs and movies, the Chem-Phy Club sponsors "Laboratory Nights," at which students can work on their projects or perfect lab techniques.

A "B" average and a vital interest in science are requisite for membership. Heading up this year's capable team of officers are Robert Rader, president; Lauritz Olson, vice-president; Arlen Williams, secretary; Stephen Teicher, treasurer; and Helen Ruth Pope, chaplain.

Quill and Scroll Extols Quality Journalism

A great honor is bestowed upon each student who receives a bid to membership in the Quill and Scroll. This organization is an international honor society for high school journalists. It strives to further the interest of students in the pursuit of journalism and in its rewards. To be eligible for membership in the Quill and Scroll, a student must have contributed to a school publication, served on its staff, and shown high scholastic standing.

To a conscientious student the highest scholastic honor attainable is membership in the National Honor Society. Eligibility requirements include maintaining a 3.5 scholastic average for three consecutive semesters and demonstrating outstanding qualities of scholarship, leadership, character, and service. Students fulfilling these requirements are initiated into the Society at an annual Honor

Assembly.

Sponsored by Mr. Donald R. Taylar, this year's Society boasted twenty-nine members, including officers Frank Deis, Michael Conway, Arlen Williams, and Mary Dutrow.

Members not pictured are Nancy Hopkins, Juliette Bowers, Rabin Carey, Helen Rauntree, and Betsey Phelps.

Krabba Highlight Gives Hampton's Students

Under the sponsorship of Miss Peoples, the Krabba Highlight has as its aim the production of an outstanding school newspaper. Comprising the sixty members of the staff are the journalism students and others with an interest in writing. The paper is published regularly and is entered in press contests.

Editor-in-chief of this year's

Math Honor Society Recognizes Able Students

Mary Dutrow seems more than mildly surprised as John Wheeler shows her a few of the many math books for sale in the library.

Organized during the current school year, the Mathematics Honor Society recognizes those Hampton High students who possess unusual capability, achievements, and interest in mathematics. Membership is open to all juniors and seniors who have won Lions Club Awards or other mathematical prizes, and to certain talented upperclassmen approved by their teachers.

Projects of the Society include expanding the math section of the school library, distributing a regular bulletin, sponsoring an entrant in the Tidewater Science Fair, and providing students with information on career opportunities.

Spanish Club Tries "Good Neighbor" Policy

Organized only last year, the Spanish Club has become very active in our school. The club sponsored a school-wide observance of Pan-American Week and held a banquet which featured Spanish food. South American guests were honored and contributed greatly to the occasion.

Miss Fountain and Miss Burns lead the Spanish Club in promoting among the students a better understanding of the Spanish-speaking countries and peoples and an acquaintance with their customs.

Officers of the club are John Robbins, president; Kenneth Stroyer, vice-president; Peggy Shaffer, secretary; Patricia Hemeter, treasurer; and Lynn Hocker, chaplain.

Tyla Matteson and Elisabeth Sherman check library reference lists for German books.

In its first year at Hampton, the German Club has worked toward publicizing and increasing knowledge of the German language. Guest speakers have appeared at regular meetings of the club to share their experiences with the fifteen members. Last spring several of these members participated in the National German Contest, and this fall the club won a ribbon for its float in the Turkey Day Parade.

Krabba Karavan Voices Hampton Activities

At 1:05 each Saturday afternoon, the Krabba Karavan goes on the air. Sponsored by Mr. Johnson, the program features all the news of HHS — Club, faculty, and sports — plus feature interviews and mystery tunes. Subjects that have been covered by special interview include the Berlin situation, United Nations, and life at our school in years past.

Janet Hayes, Mistress of Ceremonies, introduces the "Radio Voice of Hampton High School" every week on station WVEC. Tryouts for the Karavan staff are held each fall and those chosen for membership serve in broadcasting, advertising, and writing copy.

Thespian Society Honors Drama Students

Producing Play Night, the Senior Class Play, and the Festival One-Act Play are the major projects of the National Thespian Society. Membership in the Society, the highest honor in dramatics which Hampden High School students can attain, is awarded to those who acquire ten points through participation in the various productions. The members, led by Dennis Terribile, Judy Bush, Caral Adams, and Ruth Delinacentes, encourage greater student participation in all dramatic offerings in an effort to produce the best in drama.

Christmas Holidays Bring Joy and Homage

Mrs. Woodard's homeroom door was decorated by Mark Tsugiyama.

Excitement tingles through the brisk air as the most popular of American holidays begins. Throughout the school colorful decorations can be seen adorning the doors, and in the main lobby the Christmas tree gives the school a bright, cheery look. But, as the choir moves through the halls, singing beautiful Christmas carols celebrating the birth of Jesus Christ, the atmosphere changes to one of reverence and humble awe. This reverence signifies the true meaning of Christmas.

FNA Encourages Nursing as a Profession

Sponsored by the Hampton Junior Woman's Club and led by Miss Reeves and President Mary Elizabeth White, the Future Nurses of America Club seeks to interest students in personal and community health; encourages them to learn the requirements for nursing; and helps them make wise decisions about professional or practical nursing as a career. Films and guest speakers help in carrying out these purposes.

This year the FNA worked with the SCA Welfare Committee to collect toys at Christmas for underprivileged children in the community. The members also profited greatly by visiting hospitals during the year and by giving their services to help others.

Speech Club Endorses Vocal Training

Designed to promote an interest in speech activities, the Speech Club has been a vital organization in our school. In order to become a member of the club it is necessary to earn ten points, which may be earned through radio work, speeches given in assemblies, work on the debate team, and speech class. Each activity awards a certain number of these points.

The Speech Club's activities are directed by Miss Peele, sponsor, and Anne Potrick, president.

Jane Johnson and Gail Collins practice singing "America" under the tutelage of Mr. Swiggett

On February 16-18, the Hampton High Charal Department was host to an All-State Charus Concert, and later combined with the Newport News and Warwick charuses for a joint worship service at Newport News High School attended by all Protestant faiths. Each charal year ends with the Baccalaureate services.

Debate Team Argues Federal Education Aid

Should the Federal Government aid all schools? This was the national topic for high school debaters this year. From September to March, Hampton's team met with Mr. Johnson, team supervisor, to prepare its arguments for and against the issue.

Hampton placed third in Tidewater in 1960-1961, and, with the season half over at completion of this book, has defeated five schools — priming for the Wilson High Invitational and the State semifinals at William and Mary.

Hampton High debaters Margaret Alexander, Lauritz Olson, Helen Ruth Pape, and Elizabeth Marler solemnly discuss some technicalities of their argument.

Diane Geer Reigns at Basketball Homecoming

Spectators at the basketball homecoming game, held February 10, witnessed the crowning of Diane Geer as the 1962 Queen. Diane was escorted by Jeff Green.

Members of the Varsity Club were arranged in two rows through which the Queen and her attendants marched. These attendants were senior Sandra Louden, escorted by William Martin; junior Barbara Riggle, escorted by George League; and sophomore Tucker Garwood, escorted by Ronnie Bulifant.

In the game, the aroused Crabbers defeated Norview 80-56 with Stanley Trimble, Warren Chapman, and Johnny Jumper providing exceptionally fine performances. Following the contest, a dance was held in the school cafeteria.

To offer classroom instruction and on-the-job training to students seeking careers in some fields of retailing is the purpose of the Distributive Education Club. Membership is open to juniors and seniors who are sixteen years of age and genuinely interested in retailing.

The D. E. students plan to enter projects in state competition again this year.

Audiographic Staff Lights Our Way

To assist in school activities and productions, while fostering a better understanding of electricity and sound, is the purpose of the Audiographic Staff. This staff is essential to the success of many school functions.

The members are instructed by their sponsor, Mr. Olson, in Electrical Shop, and then have opportunity to apply this knowledge in work on the Audiographic Staff. Headed by President Wayne Booth, the group is responsible for lighting and sound effects for assemblies, films, plays, home football games, and meetings held at school.

James Firth shows Wayne Brown some of the principles of a single speaker system.

Hampton Students Soar "Over the Rainbow"

Take one warm and tender night,
Add the seniors, gay and bright;
Pretty girls, handsome boys,
Many thrills, many joys;
Memories are made of this.

Then add the lovely queen,
Whose court completes the scene;
For flavor charming escorts blend.
Stir carefully through the days,
See how this flavor stays;
These are the dreams we will savor.

Don't forget the "Rainbow" theme,
Folded lightly with a dream;
Dancing feet, food to eat,
Dreamy music with a beat;
Memories are made of this.

With the juniors' fond farewell
Serve it generously and well;
One Prom, big success,
Special event, happiness;
Memories are made of this.

Crabbers Are District Champs Again!

The Crabber baseball squad smashed through its 1961 season leaving records strewn by the wayside. Under Coach "Mike" Anastasio, it established a national record for consecutive games, then lost a "hard luck" conference contest at Warwick to snap the string at 31. After ending the season tied with Warwick for the Eastern District Championship, the Hampton nine got ample revenge for their lone defeat in a post-season playoff game; they ran over Warwick 6-2, to gain the second straight Hampton championship.

Sophomore Cecil Rabinsan and junior Butch Wheeler broke the old record for games won, leaving 7-0 and 8-1 records respectively. Versatile Bobby Ball led the Peninsula in batting with a .443 record. This year, with a number of veterans returning, we hope even to better last year's 17-1 record.

Linkmen Nab District Title

Spring sports gave Hampton a real chance to demonstrate its athletic prowess in 1961. Not only were we track and baseball champions, but we also took the district golf crown. Lee Woad and Mike Pfelker, under the able coaching of Coach J. M. "Suey" Eason, led the Crabbers to their best season in several years.

After a good 11-2 season of individual meets, the team went into the Eastern District Tournament, by no means favored. "We ended the first round 10 strokes behind — then, at the end of the second round we had caught up, and by the end of the third round, we were up about 10 strokes ahead . . . It certainly was a surprise! . . .", said Coach Eason, smiling at the thought. It came as a small surprise, though, to Crabber fans, who were getting accustomed to championship play.

Cross Country Team Shines

Cross country is not a spectator sport, but interest is growing at Hampton. The "Big Red" had an excellent 6-2 record this year, and Coach Johnson is looking forward to an even better record next year with top men Bill Mettler and Bill Johnson returning, along with some promising material from the undefeated junior varsity squad.

After beginning the season with a discouraging 1-2 record, the Crabbers started winning; they posted a near-perfect victory over Cradock, then a perfect score over York, and finally a surprise upset at Warwick. In Cross Country, score is kept by adding the finishing places of the five top men on each team, that is, one point for first, and so on. The team with the lowest score wins, and a perfect score is 15 points. Hampton averaged 21.5 points a game, as compared to 36 points for opponents.

Grid Squad Has Poor Season

Frustration and disappointment — but always spirit . . . this was the story of Hompton's 1961 football team. The season was not totally ruined by the Croppers' 0-9 record; who will ever forget the exciting fourth down pass which gave HHS a hard earned score against powerful E. C. Glass? Who could forget the goal-line stands against Wilson or the touchdown play against Newport News? In spite of injuries, inexperience, and a tough schedule, the "Big Red" never gave up, never lost hope.

Coach Arthur S. "Art" Letaha looks ahead to better seasons when this year's underclassmen become Seniors. From this year's group of graduating Seniors, tackle Lorry Barfoot, and Edwin Card, and halfback George "Buddy" Allman made the All-Peninsula Team. Lee McDaniel and David Young received honorable mentions.

Cage Underclassmen Star

Hamptan's basketball team, heralded as one of the Eastern District's youngest squads, boasts only four seniors with a host of capable and talented players who will return next year to keep Hamptan near the top of the District slate. Among this group is 6'6" sophomore Warren Chapman who, as our center, played a key role in Hamptan's fight for the top. In the words of Coach Mike Anastasia, "Chapman is definitely good college material . . . and will go far in basketball." Hamptan's surge was boosted by co-captains Stan Trimble and Jay Danlan, both of whom were in the top of the District's scoring averages. Often called a "sleeper," Hamptan forged ahead with aid from a student body that supported its team and from play that improved with every game.

Under the guidance of Coaches Anastasia and Bowers, Hamptan mended two fine guards in David Dwyer and John Sointsing. Dwyer, with his beautiful outside shots, and Sointsing, who was a fireball on defense, started often for Hamptan. Depth in the bench kept Hamptan on the way up and will form the nucleus of a team that may become state champion.

Hompton's J.V. baseball team ended a spectacular 10-2-1 season in possession of the unofficial peninsula championship. Under Coach "Honk" Bowers, the "Little Red" dropped its only defeats to the Worwick J.V.'s and Jefferson Davis Junior High School. The team learned to function as a unit and developed toward the championship coordination of the varsity team. This year we should have an excellent varsity, with the help of veterans from the J.V. unit. Much experience was gleaned from the tough 13 game season.

Football Bounces Wrong Way for J.V.'s

Hampton High School's junior varsity football team, win or lose, always gave an impressive display of fight and spirit. Even when the score mounted, the "little Red" would not give up, and never became discouraged. Everyone always entertained hopes of "pulling it out" right down to the last minute of play, but somehow the lucky breaks never seemed to come for our side. Every game was a real heart-breaker.

Concentrating on the development of the boys into varsity players, Coach Maynor used a system of captain rotation, appointing a different captain for every game. This gave much valuable experience to a wide range of players. Hampton had the only junior varsity team to score an Ferguson High School, and nearly won over arch-rival Newport News, only to be disappointed 7-6.

Michael Henson polishes up his punting. Hampton JV players put much time into practice.

Cheerleaders Encourage School Spirit

Hampton High School's vivacious cheerleaders scream, yell, and clap our teams to victory. It is their job to stimulate school spirit among the many fans who attend the games.

At the end of each year, an assembly is held at which time hopeful girls perform cheers in front of the entire student body. Students are then given the opportunity to vote for the eleven girls whom they feel will best represent their school. Those girls who are elected are presented with megaphones by the Varsity Club before the opening of the football season.

Carol Hughes, head cheerleader, and Linda Carmines, co-head cheerleader, lead the girls in devising new cheers and practicing them. These cheers are shown to the entire student body in the many pep rallies held throughout the year. Sponsored by Miss Betty Perry, the girls strive for more student support in athletic events.

"Well, we tried . . ." Suzanne Turnbull looks downcast after Hampton's Homecoming loss to Granby, 20-0.

Junior Cheerleaders Spark J.V. Games

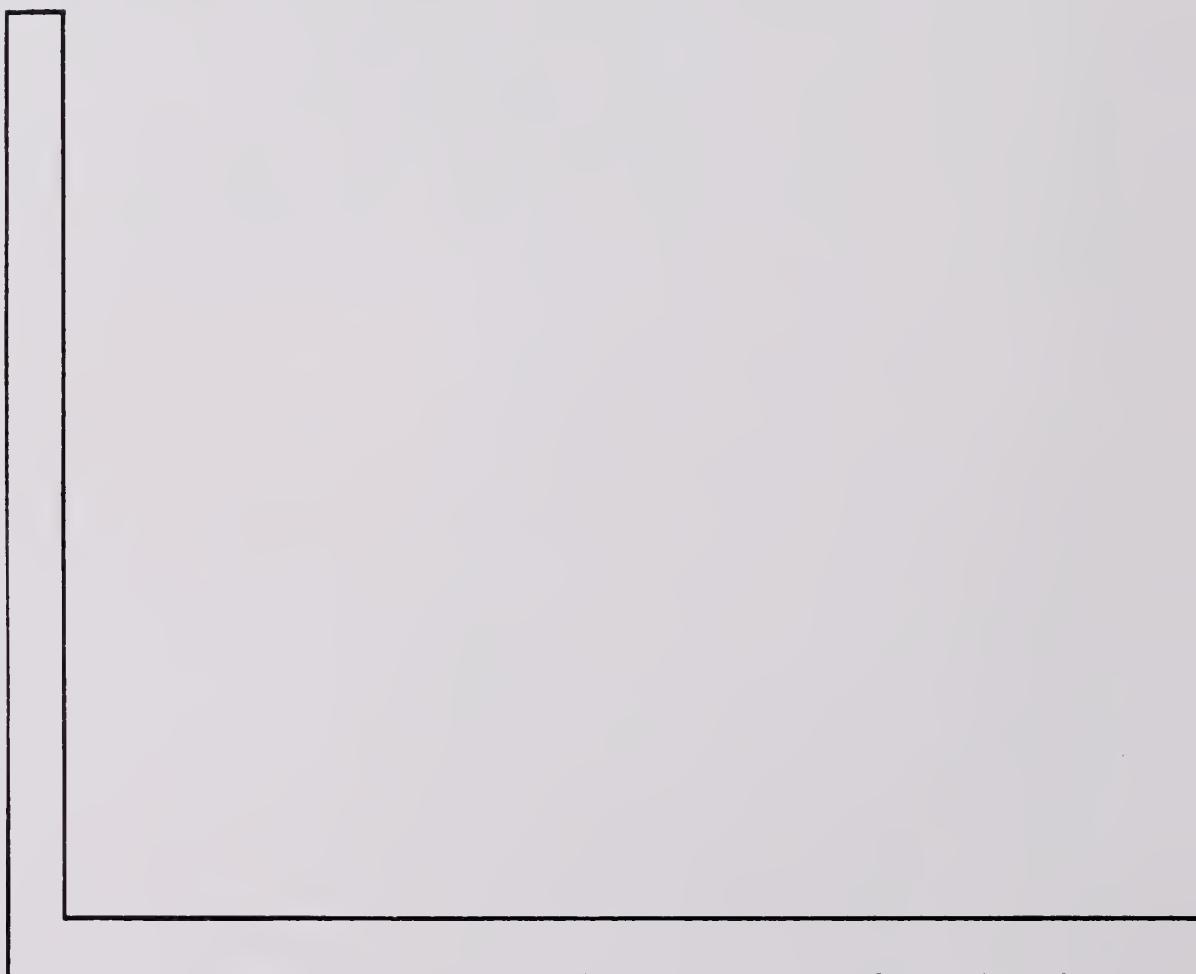

Diane Gibsan awaits other J.V. Cheerleaders before the Granby J.V. football game. This was the first one to be played on the new combination track and football field behind the school.

"If Hampton's going to win, you've got to yell!" With this cheer, and many others, the J.V. Cheerleaders spur their teams on.

Every year, seven junior varsity cheerleaders are elected from the student body. These attend all J.V. football, basketball, and baseball games, and promote student interest with numerous pep rallies.

This year's squad, Janice Thompson (head cheerleader), Kay Booth, Margaret Haley, Jean Clodfelter, Susan Marple, and Diane Gibson, help the varsity cheerleaders plan the pep rallies, and intend to help them sponsor a dance. Now and then, they even go in far afield varsity cheerleaders. Under the guidance of Miss Mary Tatum, they have done much to bolster the spirit of both Hampton fans and J.V. athletes. Many of the new cheers they have invented have caught on with the student body.

With school behind you . . .
what's ahead?

College, perhaps? Wonderful! A job? Wonderful, too, if it's the right one—with opportunities to progress and learn as well as earn. There are many such jobs at C&P, waiting for girls like you. In a telephone job, you not only start with good pay but are specially trained to make more. Raises and advancements are frequent. Surroundings are pleasant—people are friendly—and your work is never dull. Why not make your first job a telephone job—one that can lead to a happy, rewarding career?
